

BIOGRAPHY

Tameka Moore is a passionate professor and visionary leader in the educational industry. She is dedicated to being an inspiring mentor, supporting and teaching students to reach their highest individual potential in life. She encourages them to aim at achieving their dreams, showing them that the future has limitless potential, even in a world of uncertainty and constant change. Likewise, she is known for her enthusiasm to continuously learn new things towards her goal of attaining a successful career as a leader in education.

A few years ago, Tameka started her profession at New Vistas Academy as an elementary school teacher to 4th and 5th-grade students. In aiming to further her career path, she progressed on to Barbizon, USA, as an adjunct modeling instructor. Next, at Towson University, she assumed an adjunct professor position for Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math (STEM) courses. Afterward, she worked as an English as a Second Language (ESL) instructor at Latin Medial International and English for Speakers of Other Language (ESOL) in Northern Manhattan Coalition for Immigrant Rights and Bronx Community College. Later, she worked as a professor for undergraduate students at Manhattan College.

Tameka's unparalleled commitment to teaching demonstrated her excellent leadership abilities as a K-12 assistant principal and educational consultant/academic coach at New Vistas Academy, Director of education at American Beauty Academy, and ESL Center Manager at Columbia University. Her vast leadership experiences have enabled her to provide valued guidance to students and families on choosing appropriate schools and colleges.

Currently, Tameka exhibits her competency as an adjunct professor at Hudson County Community College, educating students on public speaking. She practices her adeptness in ESL to guarantee that students would learn how to express themselves with confidence in a public audience. She is also an adjunct professor at Touro College who supports teacher candidates pursuing a Master's Degree in General and Special Education from Grades 1 to 6.

Over the expansion of her career, Tameka established a strong reputation as an educator and leader through numerous accolades from her employers. For instance, she earned outstanding student feedback on evaluations from Touro and Manhattan College and a commendation in a school catalog for exceptional teaching at Bronx Community College. Tameka has also played an integral role in developing and implementing various programs and initiatives at New Vistas Academy, including the online curriculum in Moodle and the student English Language Learners (ELL) English Practice Program.

Tameka completed her Bachelor of Arts in Psychology at Long Island University, then made further advancements in her education at Adelphi University, where she attained her Master of Arts in Educational Leadership. To further enhance and deepen her commitment to the field of education and mental health awareness, Tameka is presently pursuing her Master's in Mental Health Counseling at Walden University. While in pursuit, she has also equipped herself with extensive training related to harassment, bullying, cyberbullying, and discrimination in schools and Mental Health First Aid. Tameka holds certifications in Bullying Prevention and Violence Prevention and Intervention, Certificate of Completion Project Management Professional (PMP), and Life Coach training. She is currently an affiliate of New York State Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages (NYS TESOL), Kappa Delta Pi, Association of Teacher Educators, Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development (ASCD), and American Mental Health Counselors Association.

For leisure, over the past 15 years, Tameka also maintained a balance of self through boxing, demonstrating to her students the need to create a healthy physical balance in their life for overall achievement and the best version of themselves.

In retrospect of her wide range of leadership and consulting experience, Tameka upholds her commitment and passion for education and mental health awareness through her sound understanding of relationship building, the importance of self-care, teamwork, communication, conflict resolution, collaboration, and project management. Using herself as an example to her students, she aims to empower them that there are limitless possibilities to achieve their dreams and goals in life.